

Getting started as an MSAMM intern

8 August 2026

Your registration has been accepted. From here you can be invited to sit in on real client sessions, build a record of the work you have seen, and ask questions on the public board.

The platform. Sign in to reach your profile, your sessions and the Q&A board; the language toggle is top right.

Before you can observe

Sitting in on a client session needs three things: your registration accepted, a verified identity document, and a signed confidentiality undertaking at the current version. Client work is confidential, and all three exist for that reason. Your profile page shows what is still outstanding.

Observing a session

A consultant attaches you to a meeting; you are emailed when that happens and the session appears on your profile. You join to watch the work. You are not expected to speak for MSAMM.

What you can see is deliberately narrow — the ticket's title and track, and the room. No rate, no payout, and no client contact details.

Your experience log

Sessions you attended are recorded automatically when the ticket is resolved, and a consultant who supervised you can add practical training they ran with you. The log is read-only so it stays evidence of work you actually did, rather than a list you wrote about yourself.

Being listed publicly

You choose whether your profile appears on the public consultants-in-training page. It is off until you turn it on, and you can turn it off again at any time.

Client sessions you can sit in on

A consultant has added you as an observer on these. You are there to watch the work — you are not

Your profile, with the switch that lists you on the public trainees page — off until you turn it on.

Asking questions

The Q&A board is open to everyone signed in, and consultants answer there.

The board is public and the questions stay on the site, so leave client names and system details out of what you post.
